Alan Mallach, Piano
Recital:

Nocturnes and Ballades, Moods and Stories

The nocturne and the ballade are the archetypal Romantic musical form, the one designed to set a mood, the other to tell a story. After Chopin's example, many of the greatest - and lesser - Romantic composers created some of their finest work in these forms. Alan Mallach will perform works of Chopin, Brahms, and Grieg, as well as lesser-known composers, illuminating their works and their lives with his insightful and entertaining commentary.
